next of kin or agent of the deceased student. This application would be forwarded to the relevant Dean of School or nominee.

- An application will normally be made within three years of the candidate's death.
- The relevant Dean of School or nominee will make a written application to the Academic Board, which will contain the candidate's academic record, confirmation that the candidate's death has been recorded in accordance with Student Services' deceased student procedure and any other information that the Dean of School or nominee considers relevant to the particular case.
- In instances where the application involves an incomplete award, the Chair of Academic Board will establish an ad hoc committee to consider the application and make a recommendation to the Board.
- If Academic Board determines that such an award is appropriate after taking account of the relevant circumstances, Academic Board will recommend to Council on posthumous awards.
- In instance where a posthumous award is not appropriate or recommended, the Board may recommend to the Vice-Chancellor that a 'Certificate of Achievement' be forwarded to the student's next of kin.
All aspects of any application for a posthumous award must be undertaken with sensitivity and appropriate discretion. The student's next of kin or agent should always be consulted on the application. The possibility of giving unreasonable expectations on the outcome of an application should be avoided.
