Federation University Australia (the University), through the application of its Health and Safety Governance Documents is committed to providing and maintaining, as far as is reasonably practicable, a healthy and safe environment for its staff members and members of the University community.

If a staff member sustains a work caused injury or illness, the University will provide support and assistance in accordance with the Workplace Injury Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 2013 and this Procedure .

The University can also support any staff member with a personal injury or illness by making reasonable adjustments to assist them in safely remaining at or returning to work. This might include offering reduced or flexible work hours or the provision of equipment or other supports. Further details can be found in the Workplace Adjustments for Staff with Disability Procedure.

The University encourages early injury reporting to support its early intervention approach to injury management.

Injury management is a shared responsibility, requiring cooperation and collaboration between the key stakeholders in order to achieve the most successful outcomes.

Work related injury/illness

The University supports work based recovery which aims to enable staff to safely remain at work whilst taking into account all aspects of their injury or illness. If a staff member ceases work due to injury, the University will apply the return to work hierarchy in providing suitable duties to support a safe return to work.

The injury management process will commence as soon as possible after the injury/illness is reported.

If it is considered that in the long term, an injured staff member will be unable to resume their pre-injury duties with reasonable adjustments, the University will consider offering alternative employment at the University, in a position that complies with the staff member's ongoing medical restrictions. Any alternative employment offered will be in accordance with the University's operational requirements. An Occupational Rehabilitation Provider may be engaged through the University's WorkSafe insurer to assist the staff member in finding alternative employment within another organisation.

Personal injury or illness

The University will make reasonable adjustments and modifications to support and assist a staff member to remain at or return to work following a personal injury or illness. This may require presentation of a medical certificate or other medical advice, stating what adjustments are necessary and the period for which these are applicable.

The University encourages early injury reporting to support its early intervention approach to injury management. The injury management process will commence as soon as possible after a work-related injury/illness is reported, taking into account the injured staff members' psychological and physical recovery.

The University aims to support its staff in safely remaining at work whilst they recover from an injury or illness.
